Davis Co.'s store, giving them a chance to draw the set of furs displayed in the window. There seems to be considerable interest in the affair and when the tucky number is drawn on Saturday evening, Feb. 15, there promises to be some excitement.

The concert given by Prof. Harrington and his class, assisted by local singers, was fairly well attended, and much enjoyed. The class showed advancement under has a very com nanding way and no doubt gets more out of his publis in a given ; time than many teachers. The solos rendered by Mrs. Blake, Dr. Blake and C. B. Webster were highly enjoyed and applauded.

Saturday's storm proved the worst of the season thus far, and lumbermen have no reason to complain of insufficient snow now, for fully 15 inches is reported to have fallen, and in the open high wind drifted the snow bad'y, making the roads nearly impassable yesterday and all the trains late. Reports of a terrific gale along the coast on the same day tell us the storm was not altogether local. Last week also furnished us the coldest weather of the winter, the thermometer on Thursday falling from 17 to 26 below. This morning the thermometer registered about 18 be-

The Afternoon Study club held their regular meeting Friday evening at the Congregational church parlors and carried out their usual program, with the addition of some instrumental and vocal music. It was "Gentlemen's Night" and your reporter, with 60 other invited guests, enjoyed the privilege of witnessing the working of the order. There was a pleasant company of about 100 people, consisting of 39 members beside the invited guests present. The meeting was called to order by the president, after which a duet was finely rendered by Miss Ruth Barron and Barre, where she has been visiting her Prof. Hartford. With some "voilies of wit, and fire of light raillery," in her introductory remarks the president rewere the guests of Mrs. J. P. Baldwin at ferred to the supposition of the fact that the visitors must have observed the elegance of diction, the accurate pronunclation, the pure English, the chaste classic manner with which the members of the club expressed thought, and other excellengles of a literary character as a result of their study during the years the organization had existed. The roll call was answered by quotations from George Eliot Miss Clars Drown, daughter of Mr. and and Lord Byron. Following this was the secretary, Mrs. J. A. Pearson. Miss Kate E. Ferrin recited "Tile Painter of Sevitie" is a very pleasing manner, and Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Blake sang a duet entitled "O Moment That I Bless" by Dennie. This was greeted with a hearty encore to which they responded by singing 'It Was a Lover and His Lase" by Walthew. Both Miss Ferrin and Mrs. Blaxe were presented a beautiful bouquet of roses. The next in order was a paper by Mrs. J. N. Webster on "Greenwich." With a facetious introstamp social at the vestry Tuesday even- duction relating to her early acquaintance with her subject she went on with a fine and interesting description of this cele-Notice has been received of the death at brated meridian. The paper showed much thought and research, and was greeted with chors. Following this was a lesson in English history, the subject being "Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth The subject was quite thoroughly treated, questions being arranged by the teacher of the lesson, Mrs. O D. Rowell, in such a manner as to bring out many of the facts concerning the lives of the two English queens. The members acquitted themselves creditably and showed that their knowledge of the subject was not "impromptu sequisition," but the result of considerable psinstaking and research. After this program came the social hour, when substantial refreshments were served and the visitors took an active part in this part of the entertainment. The president The Woman's Literary club will meet referred to the last part (the refreshment part) of the program as something which would appeal to the hearts of the gentlemen, and the gentlemen are waiting for more such appeal.
